Dear Mr. Manley:

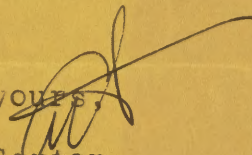

Ric advised me that you were in Washington the other day and I am sorry that it was not my good fortune to see you.

I have worked religiously in an effort to get the fellow you asked about, but he appears to be only partially interested and quite hesitant about leaving the city. He is married and has two children and works in the Government. Thus, he feels that if he leaves the job he may be reclassified and probably drafted.

Although I doubt seriously that he will be drafted in his present position, it is hard to convince the fellow. However, if you are going to be in this vicinity again soon, kindly let me know before hand and I shall try to arrange to have him talk with you. Maybe you can convince him as he is skeptical of the probable salary he may get.

Kindly give my regards to Mrs. Manley, and best wishes for a successful season.

Sincerely yours,

Art Carter
